

STUNNING GOWNS AND LACES SHOWN

Filmy Creations for Milady's
Boudoir Exhibited in Many Designs.

By FRANCES CARROLL.

Newest things in lingerie and in boudoir apparel distinguish the display made by Woodward & Lothrop, who are offering a replenished stock of trousseaux, in hand-embroidered French muslin, French combinations in princess style share favor with combinations fitted at the waist and finished with beading bands of embroidery threaded with gaily colored ribbons.

Colored ribbon, by the way, is a fancy for boudoir garments, though the woman of good taste still refrains from wearing anything but white when she dons thin blouses for street wear.

In all the French wear the ribbons which are an essential feature of the decoration are fairly broad. In trimmings Bebe Irish lace and real Chantilly lace are leading in favor, though the machine-made garments, which in point of daintiness come a close second to the hand-made articles, are usually trimmed with German Valenciennes.

Boudoir Robes Displayed.

The display of boudoir robes and negligees is especially noteworthy, all the latest ideas in these attractive garments having representation.

For the woman who loves a dainty garment and is not especially regardful of the degree of warmth it imparts, a stunningly attractive kimono of pale blue silk is shown.

A feature of the gown is a fetching border worked out in pastel shades of pink and green and, expressed in a conventional design. Down both sides of the front the border is placed, the delicately colored material appearing again in dainty kimono sleeves which fall over shaped undersleeves of soft white silk thickly inset with lace insertion.

Choux of pale blue satin ribbon catch the sleeves and also hold ribbon streamers which fall from the ruching defining round neck.

Another Stunning Gown.

Another stunning boudoir gown is of French blue chiffon, built over a lighter tone of blue china silk. The bottom of the skirt has a cluster of wide tucks, and just above the knees is an entreeux of Mechlin lace insertion in deep scalloped design. Against the filmy lace appear soutache designs in blue, the color of the material.

The soutache Mechlin also forms a yoke applied in a decorative fashion to a typical French back. The sleeves of tucked chiffon are shirred effectively and finished with touches of soutache lace. Sleeves of tucked chiffon held at the throat with rosettes of chiffon finish a most becoming garment.

For the woman who is fond of "cozy clothes," and who, nevertheless, does not care to lose any of the airy daintiness of garments built for looks alone, the craftswork who design these "dreamful clothes" have hit upon the scheme of building light silken fabrics over light wool albatross. The lining while giving a lot of warmth detracts not in the least from the appearance of the robes which come in all the light shades of blue and pink and lavender, and are embellished with hand embroidery and lace insertions, ribbons, and flowing streamers.

Convenient for Travelers.

For the traveler who is about to take a sea voyage these lined garments are just the most comfortable thing in the world, as they take but little room in a trunk, and are dreamy, becoming, and comfortable as well.

Next the boudoir gowns the most interesting thing in woman's wear are the petticoats. The taste for pretty things which the average woman has by inheritance is abundantly satisfied in the present fashion of wearing bewitching petticoats. In their effects, lace and insertion and tucks and hand embroidery render the garments luxurious to a degree. Wide ribbons in delicate shades enhance the beauty of the skirts which are flounced bewitchingly about the feet and fitted skillfully about the hips.

In silk petticoats there are shown Dresden effects for evening wear white for more formal occasions there are offered mulline silk skirts in all shades, taffeta petticoats with jersey tops, the range of color includes changeable effects in all shades as well as flowered silk and plain colors.

LECTURES ON ART IN THE CATACOMBS

Inner Religious Life of Primitive Christian Delin-eated.

The series of talks on scientific and other subjects before the members of the Public Library continue to be most interesting as they progress. The Rev. A. P. Doyle, of the Apostolic Mission, delivered a lecture last evening on "Christian Art in the Catacombs," illustrated by stereoscopic views which proved to be one of the most engaging of those thus far given.

"It is only within the last fifty years," said the Rev. Father Doyle, "that the searchlight of discovery has penetrated these underground recesses. These dark galleries and subterranean chambers constitute an ancient world in themselves, and their paintings reveal the inner religious life of the primitive Christians. The striking similitude between the doctrines of the Catholic church then and the church of today demonstrates how well the faith of Christ has been preserved through the ages."

HIGH LIVING COST CAUSE OF SUIT

Mrs. Marie H. Heath Wants to Compel Husband to Give Support.

The high cost of living has forced Mrs. Marie H. Heath to give up her boarding house at 436 M street and appeal to the District Supreme Court to compel her husband, Spencer Heath, a local patent attorney, to contribute to her support.

Her husband, she says, has an income of $126 a month, and has in two years given her only $10 for her personal use, and has contributed less than $20 a month to the support of their three children.

Through Attorneys Henry H. Glassie and Frank D. Blackstone, the woman says she was married in Grand Rapids, Mich., May 2, 1899, and came to this city two years later. When the youngest child was only one year old she says her husband told her he would have to earn her own living.

She declares that the increased cost of living has made her boarding house unprofitable, and that she desires aid from her husband. Justice Anderson has summoned the husband to appear next Friday and show cause why he should not be ordered to pay alimony.

DEMOCRATS TO DINE.
